Boy, 8, Finds Lost Jewelry For FBI Man

SPOKANE, Wash., March 1 (AP)—An eight-year-old boy who agreed to "go to work" on the case after demanding that an FBI agent produce his credentials was credited today with helping locate $13,450 worth of lost jewelry which young-ster had used as playthings for two weeks.

Mr. G. Maynor, special agent in charge of the Seattle FBI office, related the tale of a boy who found the jewelry and gave away a $700 sapphire ring and of a woman who discarded a $125.00 pearl necklace because she "decided my $3 string looked better."

Quoted by Agent Rodney Peterson, the eight-year-old FBI "assistant" was questioned by an agent tracing the route of a delivery truck which lost the jewels en route to the home of Mrs. George F. Jett, Maynor said.

"If you are an FBI man, show me your credentials," Maynor said to the youngster. "The agent who accompanied him, Rodney Peterson, the papers and was convinced.

"I'll go right to work on it," he promised.

He did.

Within half an hour, Maynor said, Rodney's mother told the FBI a claimant had notified Rodney he was seeing another boy wearing the sapphire.

Story Put Together

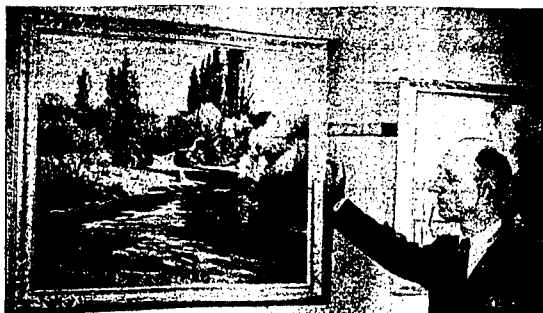

Pursuing the lead, the FBI placed together this story of the missing jewelry.

The package had fallen off the delivery truck and was found by a young boy, who took it to his home where he wore it, "got tired of it" and presented it "as a Valentine" to a third boy.

Dale threw away the necklace after tearing off a $500 diamond clasp on a coat button. A woman who found it in her window sill, she "put the string around my neck" but tossed it into a drawer because she preferred her $5 necklace.

Mrs. Jett said the jewelry had been sent from Chicago.

Heyburn Artist Exhibits Paintings at Show

Heyburn Art Exhibit Opening Today; 50 Paintings Displayed

By MRS. CANILDA STEELSMITH

BURLEY, March 1.—Heyburn high school gymnasium Sunday becomes the mecca for hundreds of south Idaho art lovers as the 12th annual Heyburn art exhibit opens at 2 p. m. and continues through the next two weeks.

About 50 paintings are included in this year's exhibit, according to Olaf Moller, well-known Idaho artist, who has worked in conjunction with G. B. Wright, superintendent of Heyburn schools. The quality of the paintings this year is reported much better than last year, and a greater variety of artists are represented, Moller said. A group of 10 paintings were sent from the Vose galleries in Spokane.

The Heyburn art exhibit, which was discontinued during the war, has been running several years ago by J. H. Whiting, former superintendent of Heyburn schools, who dreamed of having an art collection comparable to that at Springfield, Utah. Each year the Heyburn schools have purchased outstanding pictures for a permanent collection.

Among the artists exhibiting for the first time is Earl M. Reed, of Casper, Wyo., formerly from Pennsylvania. Reed has two paintings, both portraits. One is of an Indian and the other named "The Gentle Art" showing an elderly lady with beautiful facial features.

Hans Jorgenson and Joan Thoren, Jorgenson's wife, are new to the exhibit this year. Two marine views, both of rocky coastlines and dashing waves, were sent by Mr. Jorgenson. San Francisco. Mrs. Jorgenson, who signs her paintings as Joan Thoren, has two pictures, "Sundays Morning" and "Blue Spring," both having misty backgrounds of rain and snow.

Marguerite Pearson, an eastern artist, has entered an artistic picture, "Winter Sunlight," depicting an old-fashioned girl sewing before a window. The picture gives the feeling of sunlight coming through the window. This artist has painted a series of pictures using similar settings.

Prayer Painting on Display

Mildred Miller, San Diego, whose picture "Green Light," a Los Angeles street scene, was purchased last year for the school collection, has two unusual pictures in the exhibit this year. One picture, showing a 1-28 bomber attacking tanks in Africa, is entitled "Human Nightmare," while her other picture is an appealing scene of a child and dog in the attitude of prayer entitled.

ular, has five paintings in this year's show. Two of his paintings, "Village Barns" and "Waterfall on the Portneuf," were painted last fall near McCammon. Moller has two paintings of scenes near Sun Valley, and "Church of the Transfiguration," showing the Teton mountains with a church in the foreground. Verla Birrell, Brigham Young University, Provo, and Max Blaine, Mount Pleasant, Utah, are among the Utah artists showing this year.

The council noted that the 1946 housing program had not been fully filled and that production was below demand in electrical and agricultural machinery, sheet steel for automobiles, rail, train wheels and building materials.

Increases Sought

It called for increases in production of upward of 35 items from 1946 to 346 per cent above the 1946 level. It said the armed forces should be supplied with "the most modern military equipment."

The council proposed that house construction be doubled and that the proportion of housing to all capital works be upped from 10 to 16 per cent. It sought a 108 per cent increase in prefabricated house construction.

Reds Seeking Increase for Coal in 1947

MOSCOW, March 1 (AP)—The Russian council of ministers (council), blaming a lag in coal production for delaying the nation's whole economic development, today called for a 10 per cent increase in coal output as it set goals for 1947 under the five-year plan.

The council, listing "shortcomings" of 1946, said:

"The coal industry... experiencing the greatest difficulties as a result of the consequences of the war, is lagging behind, thus holding up the development of other branches of heavy industry, railway transport and the whole national economy."

War Blamed

The announcement said a "number of hardships" had been created by consequences of the war, crop failures and "backwardness of individual branches of the people's economy." It added:

"The council of ministers draws the attention of ministers of the union republics to the fact that the task of fulfilling and overfulfilling the five-year plan requires radical improvement in leadership in industry and production planning."

The council noted that the 1946 housing program had not been fully filled and that production was below demand in electrical and agricultural machinery, sheet steel for automobiles, rail, train wheels and building materials.

World Prices Limits Urged Set on Wheat

SPOKANE, Wash., March 1 (AP)—The Washington-Idaho Wheat Growers' league today called for establishment of an international price for wheat with a set minimum and maximum, rather than one specific price.

The league executive committee has been meeting here, considering various plans to be presented to an international conference in London March 15. Great Britain, the United States, Canada, Australia and Argentina will be represented. They will consider a price to be set for a five-year period.

"While different wheat price ranges are being considered," said Roland Flattery of Walla Walla, secretary of the league, "it is the general assumption that the international price for the five-year period ahead will range between $1.25 and $2.00 a bushel."

Also meeting here is the Northwest Farm council, which elected Sam Cook of Adams, Ore., representative of the Oregon Farm bureau, as president.

The wheat league group approved recommendations of its farm program and marketing committee, reaffirming the stand of the league in favor of maximum wheat production, minimum government controls, self-financing instead of government payments, a ban on government marketing and provisions permitting wheat to be sold in the free and industrial market in competition with other feed grain.

Parents Request Order to Share Custody of Sons

Their attempt to share the custody of their two sons, ages 4 and 6, for alternating six months periods was requested confirmed by the court in the divorce action filed Saturday in district court by Marian Keith against Norman C. Keith. Keith is charged in the suit with willfully ending their seven-year marriage. The couple was married March 13, 1940, in New York City.

The lengthy property settlement agreement entered into Feb. 19, this year, would permit the children to live with their father the first six months of each year and with their mother the last six months.

While Mrs. Keith agreed to surrender their house in Washington, D.C., to her husband by July 1, he in turn consented to pay her $3,000 for her interest in their jointly owned property. She will be paid $100 monthly for the support of each child, less 50 per cent while in his custody, until they are 21 or married.

Upon the husband will fall the burden of paying the expenses of educating the children, but his divorce-seeking spouse declined to ask alimony or child money. Any disputes that may arise from the settlement shall be settled by an arbitration board of three. The husband will choose one member, the wife another, and the third will be selected by the first two.

Giving aid is their job. No one can tell when or where trouble will stumble into someone's lap... when some human will need help—and need it badly.

A GI desperately needs transportation to the bedside of a stricken mother. That's a job for the Red Cross.

APATHY AND CROOKED POLITICS

Can a man go into politics and remain honest? According to a recent poll, cited by the New York Times' Lester Markel in a speech before a group of schoolteachers, 50 per cent of the questionnaires answered no. And 67 per cent said that they did not want their children to go into politics.

There is, as Mr. Markel said, "something wrong, very wrong, with our viewpoint." Why? Theoretically, a politician is one of the highest goals that a citizen could aspire to. Theoretically, it offers an opportunity to perform eminent public service and gain public esteem. Yet, too often the word politician is spoken cynically.

The reasons for this are no mystery. Few public offices offer much salary. But many of them open the door on an inviting career for graft.

Despotic individuals and groups have organized machines to control the vote, continue in office, and perpetuate graft. Some machines have protected vice, crime and racketeering and have profited thereby.

It is these cases that come to mind when people sneer at the word politician. Yet few of them look squarely at the underlying causes. Mr. Markel correctly defined them as gullibility, apathy, and bias.

The first and last are reflected in public acceptance of politicians' cigars, compliments, beer, barbecues, and empty promises, or of the inflammatory appeals of a Bill or a Tammany in the "wool hat" mentality.

These, however, are less prevalent and less serious than public apathy. The attitude of "Oh, well, politicians are a bunch of crooks and what can you do about it?" probably has had more to do with keeping crooked politicians in power than anything else.

There is something that Americans can do about it, even though they will always be gullible and apathetic. The more enlightened have the obligation to exercise their democratic rights more actively. It is not enough to turn out dishonest or incompetent bosses and office holders. The hard job is to keep them from returning.

It is a job for the citizen as parent and teacher as well as voter. Not only should he strive for honest, efficient, democratic government. He should also try to give back to politics its rightful good name.

Who directed the course of our national, and much of our individual, life in the past few critical years? There were men like Franklin Roosevelt, Harry Truman, James Byrnes, Fred Vinson, Arthur Vandenberg, Tom Connally, and Paul McNutt. All were professional politicians and undoubtedly proud of it.

Their competence, and that of their successors in the critical years ahead, comes right back to the voters. Only the voters can restore and preserve the integrity, dignity, and honor of a political career and make it desirable enough to attract the highest type of citizen.

LET'S BE FRANK ABOUT IT

The alarmed opponents of a big cut in national defense appropriations have been using politics and general terms. They have said that a drastic reduction would weaken our delegates' position at the coming Moscow conference, that would lose prestige before the world, that we would not be able to fulfill our international commitments, and so on.

All this isn't the whole truth. A little more frankness would be helpful. For it might keep this country from repeating the costly mistake of what Senator Vandenberg called "relaxing alone."

Why do we need a military budget of $11,000,000,000? We have no aggressive intentions. We don't fear attack from Britain or France or Mexico. We are not going to fight Germany or Japan again. Why, then, this enormous sum?

Everyone knows the answer, of course. But nobody in official circles will come out and say it. The President has asked for this record peacetime sum for the army and navy because, with good reason, this government is distrustful of the Soviet government's intentions.

These are known facts. The Soviet government still has a large force of men under arms. It has appropriated the services of the bulk of Germany's best military scientists for a vast research program. It is trying to produce an atomic weapon.

The British government takes a realistic view of the situation. With a military budget vastly larger than ours, in proportion to wealth and population, it has geared up and integrated a research, development and industrial program, especially in regard to aircraft and air weapons. Meanwhile there is real danger that America's military machine may be allowed to grow weak to the point of falling apart.

So, the inescapable fact should be faced: Until the Russian government gives genuine and consistent assurance of a desire for peace—not one set of views from Stalin, another from his UN delegates, and a third from his government press—we cannot afford to disarm.

TUCKER'S NATIONAL WHIRLIGIG

QUESTION—The question of bringing back the bodies of American boys killed overseas has provoked a volume of mail in the regular question-and-answer forum. Most of the writers agree with Mr. George S. Patton, Jr., who has expressed the desire that the bodies of the distinguished husband's body remain in a French cemetery.

The second is from L. G. N. and S. D. W. of Boise, Ida., two youngsters who soldiered through the hell of Okinawa. Although written in GI vein, they reach the same conclusion as the sky pilot. And they say that their views represent those of the majority of the buddies with whom they discussed this question while in Okinawa.

PEACE—No one can truthfully say, "writes the chaplain," that I did not, or do not now, have a sympathetic point of view regarding this question. At times I have wept, and at other times I couldn't weep, but at all times I was moved by sympathy and deep respect for the chaplain's position.

EMOTIONS—In a letter quite as reverent as the chaplain's in its own expressive way, the two OIA tell their emotions. Mrs. Patton is a very sensible woman. The matter of bringing dead American soldiers back to this country is a matter, we believe, in most cases, against the wishes of the soldier himself.

RIOTS—Many ex-servicemen have written to express agreement with B. P. L. of Cherokee, La., who writes that the only reason for the riots in the form of educational and training schools is the fact that the government is not giving them the money they need to live on.

TRANSPORT—D. E. who did not give his address, for instance, presents an original viewpoint and a possible solution of one phase of the problem. "Your mention of this question is the first recognition I have seen in the press that the GI bill is really being considered as a means of solving the problem of the returning soldier."

GRAFT—Should be aired. Disclosure that Idaho liquor dispensary stamps of the 1946 series were found in possession of Twin Falls men covers following recent raids there further light on the misuse of power and authority in the state monopoly. The Lewiston warehouse "deal" which was discovered last fall was the first instance of abuse although we have reason to believe that such was commonplace practice.

STREET REGULATION—The sale of sleeping pills in line with a national effort to remove the "gun" menace and place control of use of the drug in the competent hands of physicians. Cooperation of the public will be of aid in this sensible campaign—Lewiston Tribune.

STAMP DEAL—The stamp deal together with the Lewiston scandal are listed in the state of the graft which has pervaded the liquor monopoly in Idaho. In the Lewiston case, there should be some criminal convictions but we doubt if it will ever come around to that. The people's property or power of authority whether it concerns liquor or anything else makes little difference. The new administration could well afford to bring this matter to light and force prosecution of the guilty parties—Jerome North Side News.

BOB HOPE

The Wyoming legislature may pass a bill compelling California cars to carry red flags and bells to warn pedestrians. It isn't really necessary. You can always spot a California car.

They are already ready using a similar idea in Los Angeles. One auto dealer is selling a car that comes equipped with church bells.

As for me, I don't mind the kind of equipment Wyoming is asking. When I'm out driving I attract enough bells without carrying a red flag.

The idea of warning pedestrians would appeal to the sporting tradition of some California motorists. It's getting them on the street couldn't make the thrill of hounding them across fields, over buildings, and in daily knocking them off in their own living rooms.

But it's really safe and California motorists can relax. I did start across Hollywood boulevard, humming "Old Bluebird" (I'm in the second I was tasting it).

Why single out California drivers? They are as courteous, cautious and careful as the drivers in any other state. Of course, that's an argument to pass that Wyoming law if I ever heard one.

HOW THINGS APPEAR FROM PEGLER'S ANGLE

Somewhere, I keep coming back to that fellow. He sort of caught me that first day when they telephoned him that he was in the "ordinary" book.

It has been a long time since you heard of old Dan Tobin, of the teamsters in and out of the White House, and the PAC is built along the Anti-Saloon League. Sidney Hillman and Wayne B. Wheeler settled on a cloud braiding every day and doing and seeing calling each other the bossiest old boss that ever lived, like Noah and the hero of the Galveston flood.

It took that fellow a spell to get the feel of the track, to learn himself and made them talk along and the proposition of 26 weeks at $15 a week for the laid-off war workers after the UAW had been boasting that it got the highest wage in history and even $80 a week for a sweeper.

I figure it was the old crowd who handed him that one, not so much that they hoped to get it as to show they had him for theirs. He was terrible on OPA when he tried to save for the laid-off war workers, still listening when he should have been talking.

Then, all of a sudden, the fellow was there. I remember the night Peavey Nurni ran his first race in America in the old garden. I saw Al Copeland, the old sprinter and coach, was sitting there and after three or four laps said, "Yep, this one is a runner."

And that is what I am thinking. I am thinking that if the Republicans had him, at his present political age and with the class he has shown, not merely since election when he came on so stylish, but along in there when he was quietly passing the time, he would have it all. The Democrats would have nobody then because he would be a real winner.

Don't heckle me about his past with Fendegast or the way he stalls and stalls in a cloud braiding every day and doing and seeing calling each other the bossiest old boss that ever lived, like Noah and the hero of the Galveston flood.

The Democrats would have nobody then because he would be a real winner.

Don't heckle me about his past with Fendegast or the way he stalls and stalls in a cloud braiding every day and doing and seeing calling each other the bossiest old boss that ever lived, like Noah and the hero of the Galveston flood.

I took that fellow a spell to get the feel of the track, to learn himself and made them talk along and the proposition of 26 weeks at $15 a week for the laid-off war workers after the UAW had been boasting that it got the highest wage in history and even $80 a week for a sweeper.

I figure it was the old crowd who handed him that one, not so much that they hoped to get it as to show they had him for theirs. He was terrible on OPA when he tried to save for the laid-off war workers, still listening when he should have been talking.

Then, all of a sudden, the fellow was there. I remember the night Peavey Nurni ran his first race in America in the old garden. I saw Al Copeland, the old sprinter and coach, was sitting there and after three or four laps said, "Yep, this one is a runner."

And that is what I am thinking. I am thinking that if the Republicans had him, at his present political age and with the class he has shown, not merely since election when he came on so stylish, but along in there when he was quietly passing the time, he would have it all. The Democrats would have nobody then because he would be a real winner.

HOW EFFICIENT IS YOUR HOME...

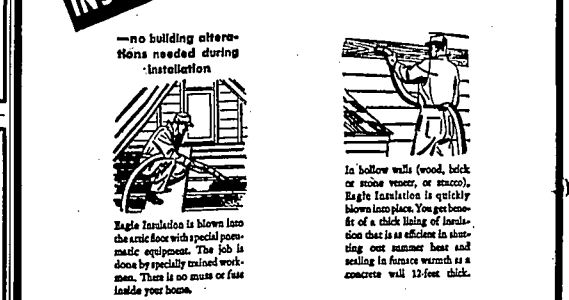

.... when it comes to heating?

Be honest with yourself. Does it seem like your coal isn't giving out much heat? That most of your heat is going up the chimney? That your stoker is running too much of the time? That no matter how high you set your thermostat, your home always seems chilly? Any or all of these symptoms of home inefficiency may be due to the fact your home isn't insulated. In other words, home insulation is a lot more important than you perhaps realize. When we say that EAGLE MINERAL WOOL INSULATION will pay for itself in savings on fuel alone, we mean just that. And you get all the other advantages and comforts free of charge. Isn't that worth investigating?

Jargon Quits Capital With 'New Dealers'

By FREDERICK C. OTTMAN
WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—The policy here is a long time. For as anything better said, they are about optimum production, co-extensive in a democratic manner, and the qualitative and quantitative phases of a democratic democracy.

This is good. It's almost a new word. First thing you know, you'll be able to read a government document and get some idea what it's talking about.

The intense young men of the new deal, smoking pipes, wearing tweeds, tossing cocktail parties in the remodeled stums of Georgetown, and speaking a variety of pig Latin all their own, are no more.

They're funneling no statistics today, producing no meaningless minutiae, transmitting broadly no related and unrelated factors. Gobbledygook, the special language of the bureaucrats against which Muriel Maverick ranted for years, is fading from the capital.

Nobody's exclaiming anything the way those habits turned phony nouns into verbs was a crime in the last two months. Everybody's happy about this development, with the exception of Randolph Bledsoe, a man with a hobby.

As a broadcasting nabob from the Pacific northwest, Rudy had struggled manfully through the gobbledygook with the help of a thesaurus and a lawyer. He had times could translate it into English.

The language of government is practically impossible to understand eventually because so many words are used which frequently couldn't stand up in a court of law. So they started preparing charts. They're where Rudy's hobby comes in.

Collects government charts like some people collect shaving mugs. To date he has isolated and classified 171 distinct varieties of federal charts, some printed in six colors, and one so deluxe it used up all the funds of the senate which produced the chart.

The committee now is out of business.

My research indicates that the most popular by far is the dangling rectangle chart, a good example of which hangs on President Truman's official wall. "The runner-up is a variety which I call the swinging pendulum chart."

He keeps under lock first editions of the service ribbon chart, the poker chart, the checker chart, the teeming chart, the liver spot chart, and the apple pie chart.

"This latter is a favorite of the state department," he said. "It always shows who gets the biggest and the smallest slices of the taxpayers' pie."

The prolific originator of charts was the OPA, which produced the jagged lightning chart, the inverted life-size chart, the city skyline chart, and the red and blue box contrivances in close-embroidered chart.

The war department was also a chart maker, either.

"It's specially the big man and the little man chart," Rudy said. "Though it frequently put out the little-men-in-a-row chart, with the last man always chopped squarely in two."

Idaho's Milk Output Above Pre-'41 Mark

BOISE, March 1 (AP)—The bureau of agricultural economics said today the estimated 1,261 million pounds of milk produced on Idaho farms last year was seven per cent less than 1945 but was greater than any year prior to 1941.

The highest record is 1,405 million pounds in 1944. The average production for the 10 years 1935-44 was 1,216 million pounds. The agricultural report added:

"Milk production per cow reached 1,220 pounds, four per cent above the previous year and the second highest on record. The number of cows milked, estimated at 212,000, had declined for the second consecutive year. They were about 15 per cent below the 1944 peak of 250,000 head. Declining cow numbers began around September, 1945.

"The number of yearling heifers being kept for milk cows Jan. 1 was estimated to be three per cent smaller than the year previous, and the number of heifer calves being kept for milk cows was found to be seven per cent smaller.

"Monthly production of milk was considerably under last year for every month with the exception of December. The peak was reached in May, 1946, and at 136 million pounds was approximately six per cent less than the June, 1945, peak of 145 million pounds. The low point of 1946 was in November when only 84 million pounds were recorded. Production per cow was above every month in 1945 with the exception of June."

Divorce Orders Grant Freedom For Three Men

What court hearings on cases "freedom day" came up again Friday when District Judge James W. Porter granted unconditional divorce decrees to three men—on grounds of cruelty.

A co-respondent was named in Woodrow L. Baker's complaint that his wife, Madge, "has lived with at least one man other than" Baker while he has been away on naval duties. Furthermore, she allegedly informed him that she married him in 1941 "for the purpose of receiving his service allotment."

Dolph K. Bowman, who split with his wife, Lucille Rose Bowman, when she left their home last September, made the separation permanent. She was given custody of their three-year-old son, now with her at her mother's home in Riverside, Calif.

The pre-settlement property settlement agreed upon by Robert Earl Loy and his wife, Virginia Blanche Roytance

Loy, was affirmed by Judge Porter as he granted Loy the divorce, gave his wife back her former name, Virginia Blanche Roytance.

Loy got half of a $3,000 joint bank account and a 1931 sedan, and his wife was awarded a 1941 sedan and the other half of the savings and property in Jerome county she purchased before their marriage.

He gave the world a new voice

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL
Drawn from a photograph by Moffett, 1918

Alexander Graham Bell was a teacher of the deaf. He was also a trained scientist who made it possible for millions upon millions of people to hear each other by telephone.

The telephone brought something into the world that had not been there before.

For the first time people were able to talk to each other even though separated by long distances.

Horizons broadened. A new industry was born, destined to employ hundreds of thousands of men and women and be of service to every one in the land.

Dr. Bell was a great humanitarian, not only as a teacher of the deaf but in his vision of the benefits the telephone could bring to mankind.

Bell's vision has come true. It keeps on being an essential part of this nationwide public service.

Once upon a time...

"Men like Washington, Jefferson, Franklin did their writing and reading by candle light. Abraham Lincoln studied his lessons by fire light. Then came gas light and kerosene lamps.

"For centuries, until just a few years ago, man was forced to strain his eyes at work or at play. Then came the electric light, and scientific research in the field of good lighting soon produced special lamps for all manner of work and play.

"Right now, lighting for domestic uses is better than ever. Now there is no reason for anyone to suffer eyestrain due to lack of light. Always remember that your eyes are one of your most precious possessions. Help protect them with plenty of light whenever and wherever you work and play."

That's not the end of the story, although it's a happy one. For the first time in several years your dealer has an ample supply of better-than-ever floor lamps and pin-up lamps with which you can brighten up and beautify your home. See them now and let your dealer help you select the modern lamps to fit your needs. Let this be the moral of the story.

Life in MAGIC VALLEY

By ENE PUCKETT

If I should die tonight and you should care, say in grief and love.

"Here's that old song that I own." I'd rise up in my long white cravat and yell, "What's THAT?"

In 1848 Abe Lincoln's nephew asked him for a loan of $30. The wise old rail-splitter looked about him for a moment and turned his head down flat. You can still read the letter and peruse the letter.

"Dear John: Your request for eighty dollars I don't think best to comply with. As various times when I have helped you, you have said, 'We can't get along very well now, but in a short time you will be in a difficulty. Now this can happen only through some defect in your conduct. What that is I think I know. You are not lazy, but still you are an idler. I don't think you have done a good day's work in any one day. You don't dislike work but still you do not work well..."

"This habit of waiting time is the worst difficulty... You are in the need of some money. What I propose is that you go to work 'tooth and nail' for Idaho, and somebody who will give you money for it."

"Now if you will do as you're told, you will be out of debt and have a habit which will keep you from getting in again... If you will not follow my advice you will find that in more than eight times eighty dollars to you."

Affectionately, Your brother, A. Lincoln.

It's a Choderlos dream house and it stands with its back to the great canyon wall in Hagerman valley. We came upon it as we lugged a picnic basket through the sage and boulders, even in Idaho, where picnics in February. The roof was rickety, and the fireplace had been recently fashioned with a new cement. The house was fastened with a lot of deer things. The whole place looked like something that might have dreamed up in one of those whimsical comedies.

"Tell it not in Gath," we said, but a stranger has been told. We left his mark. Who was he? Why did he leave?

Quoted with this question, we took-and-drew our way over the huge lava hunks on which the dream cottage was perched. We peered in dusty windows and through chimneys. We probed the yard, which even in wild neglect, had a look of planned beauty and of art.

In the hazy aspen-bush behind the place, we came upon a crumpled bit of paper. We peered through the weather stains. In one corner was a little picture of mountains and trees and below was printed: PAINTINGS OF THE FAR WEST by Archie B. Teater.

That's all we could learn about the man behind the Choderlos house, but we hope he comes back to Magic Valley some day. Every rock and shrub of his dream cottage bears the mark of a true love of beauty.

Their handsome Studebaker and home-made trailer was parked at the vast aspen-bush south of Gooding. The trailer door was open and we could see a woman with her head swathed in a jolly yellow scarf. There was the smell of hot, boiling beans. The man had a friendly out-door face. "We had a cattle ranch up Dole way," he said, "worked 20 years. Then we sold out and took so tramps' around the country. We just open a map, pick some place or other, and start out. Don't know where we go next, but we been in 24 states so far." He pointed to the side of the trailer. "My wife joined them down," he said. Under the caption, "Just a Couple of Bums," was the name of the state. "We've visited: Louisiana, Kansas, California, Texas, Washington, Wyoming—they had been everywhere but far east and deep south."

"We aim to have some fun while we are still young enough to enjoy it," said the woman, who had now joined us. "We've seen too many couples, slave and work-along, sayin' they will take time off to enjoy themselves after a while. Next thing they are old, and it's too late."

"Did you have any exciting adventures during all those travels?" we asked. The man said they sure did. One night a fellow drove in and parked by them, and next morning the law arrived to take him. He was a dangerous maniac who had killed five people and terrified the community.

Their names were named Brandon and with them was Bob, their sheep dog. "We were offered a hundred dollars for him," said Mr. Brandon. "He's half shepherd and half Chow. Been with us in all our travels." Bob came up to sniff our acquaintance. He was black with brown eyes, and his tail had started out to be a Chow tail and changed its mind. It was just half a curl with a lot of limp hairs hanging off it.

The Brandon said they stop and work a bit now and then to get the feel of a new community and meet

"Americans' Day" Set by President

WASHINGTON, March 1.—President Roosevelt today proclaimed Sunday, May 18, as "American day," and called on federal, state, local and private agencies to hold commemorative exercises.

The ceremonies, he said, will be to "help our citizens better to understand their privileges and responsibilities as participants in our representative democracy; to the end that world peace and domesticity may be attained and perpetuated."

The celebration is an annual affair to honor those who have become citizens of the United States in the year of its founding.

It is a woman's world, folks. When a man or woman says, "How's the baby?" "What's the name?" "What's a beautiful baby?" When he says they say, "How much did he cost?"

Rupert Veterans Form Civic Club

RUPERT, March 1.—A veterans association for civic improvement has been organized in Rupert to assist the veterans' housing problem and possible opening of a subdivision to the city.

Edward Hedrick has been named chairman and Donald Dickson, secretary.

Veteran employment also was discussed at the first meeting. Another meeting will be held March 10 to hear committee reports.

SELECTED TO OFFICES UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, March 1.—Three Magic Valley students were elected to offices of Beta Beta Beta elected men's residence at the university. Jas. Steel, Bailey, was elected secretary and Donald Thorpe, Twin Falls, was chosen treasurer. Charles G. Heyburn, Coalinga, had been everywhere but far east and deep south.

"We aim to have some fun while we are still young enough to enjoy it," said the woman, who had now joined us. "We've seen too many couples, slave and work-along, sayin' they will take time off to enjoy themselves after a while. Next thing they are old, and it's too late."

"Did you have any exciting adventures during all those travels?" we asked. The man said they sure did. One night a fellow drove in and parked by them, and next morning the law arrived to take him. He was a dangerous maniac who had killed five people and terrified the community.

Their names were named Brandon and with them was Bob, their sheep dog. "We were offered a hundred dollars for him," said Mr. Brandon. "He's half shepherd and half Chow. Been with us in all our travels." Bob came up to sniff our acquaintance. He was black with brown eyes, and his tail had started out to be a Chow tail and changed its mind. It was just half a curl with a lot of limp hairs hanging off it.

Records Made By 2 Fighter Planes in Day

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP)—Paul Mantz landed a P-51 Mustang fighter plane at La Guardia field late yesterday to set a new transcontinental speed record for a single-engine, propeller-type plane—the second mark made at the field the same day.

Mantz, 43-year-old veteran speed flier, made the 2,446-mile flight from Burbank, Calif., in six hours, seven minutes and five seconds in the same plane in the end of the Bendix race from Burbank to Cleveland, O., last year.

Longest Flight
Earlier yesterday the Betty Jo, army twin-engine P-52, arrived non-stop from Honolulu in 14 hours and 21 minutes at the end of the longest flight ever made by a fighter plane—4,978 miles.

Lieut.-Col. Robert C. Thacker of El Centro, Calif., piloted the Betty Jo, with Lieut. John M. Ard of Inglewood, Calif., as co-pilot.

Mantz broke a record set in 1944 by Lieut.-Col. Jack Carter of the army air force, who flew a P-51 non-stop from Los Angeles to New York in six hours, 30 minutes and 30 seconds.

Better times have been made by multi-engine propeller planes, including the army's Pacman Dreamboat, a Superfortress which flew from Burbank to New York in five hours and 27 minutes in 1945.

Col. William Council holds the transcontinental speed record. He flew a P-40 jet plane from California to New York in four hours, 13 minutes and 30 seconds on Jan. 25, 1946.

Better Time Possible
Mantz said yesterday he could have done much better if he could have not faltered shortly before he reached New York.

"I spent a half hour over the other side of Philadelphia trying to get my radio working," he told reporters, "I lost 40 minutes trying to find New York. After all, I'm only a country boy."

His trip was made mostly above an overcast and was uneventful, he said, estimating his average speed at about 475 miles per hour. He said he flew mostly at 20,000 feet, and the temperature was as low as 45 degrees below zero.

Commenting on the Betty Jo's feat, the army said there were no records comparable to that set by the P-52.

Fairfield Scouts Get Tanned On Ski Trip Into Mountains

FAIRFIELD, March 1—Twelve sun-burned boys and two Air Scout leaders are back in Fairfield, armed with pictures and memories of a 10-mile all trip for which Fairfield pilots parachuted supplies to the mountain area.

Laden with beds, a few personal items and supplies of K-rations, just in case connections mislaid, members of the Air Scout squadron and their leaders, Albert Thurber and A. R. Frostman, started out. They traveled about nine or 10 miles the first day, mostly uphill to Wells summit.

A little after noon, a plane from the Fairfield airport dropped a package of food to the boys at the Pooking camp and flew back low enough to check if everything was all right. The Scouts had arranged with the pilot a system of signals to indicate whether or not any were injured, had broken skin, etc.

When the boys reached the camp that night the food was still intact. They stayed in the buildings over night and got an early start the next morning, sliding down the slope to the White bridge at the mouth of Five Points creek, where another bundle of food was dropped about noon.

The boys slept overnight on pine boughs atop the hill which, was from three to 15 feet deep. The boys climbed to the top of Couch summit and skied down the hill to a farmhouse, where arrangements were made for a truck to pick up the Scouts.

Members of the squadron making the trip were Elmer Johnson, Robert Orr, Richard Jones, Dick Blackwin, Tommy Spackman, Dorman Cluer, Charles Olson, Horton Olson, Gaylen Koonce, Les Edwards, Jack Armstrong and Lowell Ruby.
